

Activity summary of CIAS fellow in Budapest

Name (with title):

Dr. Salvatore Engel-Di Mauro, PhD, senior research fellow

Home institute (name, position, country):

Professor

Department of Geography

SUNY New Paltz, New York, USA

Partner(s) in Hungary:

Corvinus Institute for Advanced Studies

Academic Year / Semester: Academic year 2019/20, Spring semester

Duration: 5 months

Sponsor(s): CIAS

Work in progress:

Effects of Social Composition and Carework Responsibilities on the Viability of Urban Community Gardens in Budapest

Connected publications:Published

(Q1 Journal) Salvatore Engel-Di Mauro. 2020. The Troubling and Troublesome Worlds of Urban Soil Trace Element Contamination Baselines. Environment and Planning E: Nature and Space 3 (1): 95-113. CIAS affiliation is shown via corrigendum at <https://journals.sagepub.com/doi/full/10.1177/2514848620915082>

Forthcoming

(Q1 Journal) Salvatore Engel-Di Mauro. 2020. Atmospheric Sources of Trace Element Contamination in Cultivated Urban Areas: A Review. Journal of Environmental Quality <https://doi.org/10.1002/jeq2.20078>

Salvatore Engel-Di Mauro. 2021. Les Jardins Partagés Urbains comme Espaces Politique et Écologique Troublés. In Actes du Colloque de Caen sur les Approches Critiques de la Dimension Spatiale des Rapports Sociaux, edited by A. Clerval, C. Gardesse, and J. Rivière. Paris: Editions l'Oeil d'Or.

Additional activities (presentations, professional meetings, public lecture etc.):

Globalisation and Environment (Seminar lecture online for the course titled “Global Social Change and Inequalities”), Corvinus University, Budapest, 15 April

Future plans, planned return (if any):

He plans to publish professional paper(s) in related at least Q2 professional journal(s) from the results of fieldwork. Once feasible, he aims to return to Budapest to complete the fieldwork started in February-March 2020 on urban community gardens (the “Work in Progress” described above).